Reviews:

Jenny Inzerillo, High Plains Public Radio

"From where I sit, Carl's music has it all. His songs are honest and expertly crafted, with a straightforward simplicity that weaves effortlessly into folk, Americana, and classic songwriter genres. To me, his style evokes the best of John Prine, Mark Knopfler, Jackson C. Frank, and Dave Van Ronk, with stories as rich as they are insightful. This folk DJ appreciates music rooted in human experience and communicated plainly to strangers with willing hearts. I'm grateful for artists like Carl who put everything of themselves in their composition, but with the listener in mind."

Timberline Mountain Music Festival:

Portland's own Carl Solomon will open the show at 12:30. This local singer-songwriter accompanies himself on guitar and delivers riveting "slice of life" songs steeped in soulful folk, roots, and blues. Carl performs in the storyteller tradition, and delivers tales well worth listening to.

Judy Beaudoin Paradise House Concerts "Carl's prose is wonderfully creative and engaging, his melodies gentle, joyful and playful. To experience his live performance is to be wondrously transported to a place only sweet, true music can take you."

Carl had a great idea that he brought to life! He collected a group of songwriters and musicians from the Portland / Vancouver area. Together, they built a local chapter of the national organization- "Soldier Songs & Voices," <http://soldiersongsandvoices.org/> and facebook.com/SSVPDX This group gives a creative outlet to Vets by teaching them music, guitar & song writing skills.
